This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. THIS Catalogue of the Sanskrit, Pali, and Prakrit books in the British Museum has been compiled by Professor Bendall, Senior Assistant in the Department of Oriental Printed Books and MSS. It is supplementary to that made by the late Dr. E. Haas, and is arranged on the principles laid down by that scholar in his introductory remarks to the earlier work, with some modifications which are fully explained in the Preface to the present volume.

ROBERT K. DOUGLAS,

KEEPER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF ORIENTAL PRINTED BOOKS AND MSS.

BRITISH MUSEUM,
May 29, 1893.

PREFACE.

As the present work forms a supplement to the "Catalogue of Sanskrit and Pali Books in the British Museum," by the late Dr. E. Haas, it will be useful to make some observations as to new features introduced, including points of departure from the principles laid down in the preface of that work.

Scope. (Haas, p. iv.)

First, as to the scope of the work. The term "Prakrit" has been added to the title of the present volume because the publications in Prakrit have very considerably increased since the date of Dr. Haas's Catalogue. This has been (as may be seen from our Select Subject Index) mainly owing to the literary activity of the Śvetāmbara Jain sect. I may here note that Jain works are catalogued under the Sanskrit titles authorized by tradition, though the corresponding Prakrit forms are also given in the Index of Titles.

The Subject-Index just referred to forms a second new feature of the present work, and is similar to those which have been found useful in the catalogues of several Indian vernaculars. In view of the comparatively greater number of handbooks available for students of Sanskrit, no attempt has been made to render this Index exhaustive; but it is hoped that it will prove useful to students, as well as to the compilers of chrestomathies and other educational works. Referring to Dr. Haas's remarks on the scope of his Catalogue (p. iv.), it may be here stated that an endeavour has now been made to supply references to texts published in the Journals of learned societies, which were there omitted. A complete list of the translations of the Bible into Sanskrit and Pali has also been added.

Transliteration. (Haas, p. v.)

In order to explain the mode of transcription, as well as to afford a ready means of reference for the very numerous alphabets used in printing Sanskrit works, a table of transliteration has been added.

No serious discrepancies will be found between this and the system adopted by Dr. Haas; but the experience gained by the publication of catalogues of other Indian literatures has shown that some few fresh signs* were desirable.

* Especially in the distinction of the various nasals, and the substitution of the mark usually employed to express prosodial length for the sign identified with accentuation (e.g. ā, not á, for ◌ा).

The general principle laid down by Dr. Haas (p. v.), that "the historical ground is the only safe one on which to build a system of uniform transcription," has been loyally carried out;* indeed, the exception noted by him—the case of the unpronounced final a—has been in the present work treated according to the general law, and written accordingly without parentheses.†

Nomenclature. (Haas, p. vi.)

The same general principles of nomenclature have likewise been followed, with two exceptions: (1) The Bengali (and North Indian) addition of the word "Ṣarman" (Brahman) after the personal name has been disregarded, as conveying no useful new information, the vast majority of Sanskrit writers still being of the highest caste. (2) In the South Indian names Dr. Haas's plan of cataloguing such names under initials has been departed from. The author instanced by him (T. Kristnasawmy Iyer) now appears as Kṛishṇáswāmi Aiyar, T., the name designated by the initial being regarded as, in some sort, an epithet. The advantages of this more practical system are: (1) that it accords in general with the practice of duly qualified Europeans in South India, e.g. the compilers of the Madras University Calendar; (2) that, taken in connexion with native nomenclature in the other Presidencies, it reduces the cataloguing of Indian names to a principle at once more simple and, as I venture to think, more scientific than that of taking them "as they stand," viz., that all Indians should be catalogued under their native personal names.‡ Such names are readily distinguishable from epithets and the like by the Sanskrit scholar, owing to the fact that throughout all India in the literary classes the name given at birth is usually a compound of regular construction, and almost invariably of religious import, e.g. Devadatta (cf. Ζηνόδοτος).

It may be well to add here that personal names are transliterated on precisely the same principles as other Oriental words. A recent very able writer has tried to justify the opposite plan by assuming "the principle that everyone has a right to spell

* Besides the exception noted below, a slight change has been made in transcription of those names of modern Hindus the base of which ends in न् n. In conformity with modern usage, the n is now dropped, though it is retained in the case of the old writers, such as Daṇḍin, Śrīdharasvāmin.

† In certain vernaculars, however, and in personal names not directly referable to Sanskrit originals, the final a has been dropped. Compare the preface to the Catalogue of Hindi Books.

‡ That the personal name is really the chief name, even in the south of India, may be seen from the following circumstances: (1) That native converts, when they retain their old names at all, retain their personal names in lieu of surnames, prefixing to them the names which they receive at baptism, such as John or Samuel. The old prefixed (so-called) "family"-name (or rather place-name) disappears or is (apparently) cancelled. Accordingly, by the plan now adopted, works written before and after conversion would appear under the same general heading. (2) Native scholars of South India, when writing of themselves in the body of a Sanskrit work, entirely suppress their prefixed local family-name (amongst other reasons, it is usually of non-Aryan origin, and versu dicere non est), and use the personal name alone. Compare the Sanskrit dedicatory verses of R. Śivaṣaṅkara Paṇḍya's works. Attention has been already drawn by Dr. Haas (p. vii.) to the exceptional conditions of Sinhalese names.

his own name as he likes."* But this principle, if principle it be, must apply only to the native alphabet of the writer.† When European Orientalists are so hopelessly at variance, how can we expect natives to write any words—even their own names—on a consistent plan?

Some pains have also been taken to give the names of European writers with a full correctness befitting a Catalogue that forms part of the system of a large library. Orientalists who may be surprised at finding somewhat long epithets added to their names in the present work may be reminded that their literary namesakes are probably to be found in the General Catalogue of the Museum Library, the rules of which have in the main been observed here, with some slight modifications.‡ A case in point is the omission of publishers' names in imprints, which here are only added to distinguish two editions of the same year or where the book derives a special character from its mode of publication.§

A certain discretion has been reserved in mentioning or giving cross-references to the names of persons laying claim to be considered as editors. In a few cases where the "editor" was partly a press-corrector and partly a prolific issuer of reprints, a mere list of the headings of the works published has been given under his name.

In revising the latter half of this work much assistance‖ has been derived from Dr. S. Th. Aufrecht's useful Catalogus Catalogorum.

I have profited on many occasions by the advice of my colleague, Mr. A. G. Ellis, on points relating to arrangement and style; and still more often by the wide knowledge of the North Indian vernaculars possessed by my friend Mr. J. F. Blumhardt, whose work for this Department in connexion with these languages is so greatly appreciated.

* G. A. Grierson, Notes on the Vernacular Literature of Hindustan, p. ix.

† In this a settled usage is generally observed. Thus, the form Chaṭṭopādhyāya is adopted because the Brahmans bearing that name always write चट्टोपाध्याय, as Dr. Haas has shown (p. v.). Occasionally modern Pandits appear to use a Sanskritized literary name (compare Caius for Kaye). See the heading VIṬHOBĀ AṆṆĀ KARHĀḌAKAR (col. 481).

‡ In the present work, as a supplementary catalogue, it has been thought best, on practical grounds, to follow Dr. Haas's arrangement, by which in the case of grammatical works, where commentaries are piled on commentaries many deep, the leading commentator is treated as an independent author.

§ E.g. an official character. See the numerous publications of the Departments of Public Instruction in India.

‖ Many works, however, have been printed, especially in South India and Ceylon, of which no MS. is registered in the catalogues on which Dr. Aufrecht's work is founded. Of the Sanskrit literature extant in Ceylon very little seems to be known in Europe. The works there published deal chiefly with medicine and with astrology.

CORRIGENDA AND MINOR ADDENDA.

Col. 4, line 22 (note). For Ñayyadhamma, read Ñeyyadhamma.

„ 15, Heading ĀNANDATĪRTHA, add note: A Canarese commentary on this author's Mahabhāratatātparya was published at Bombay, 1891, and will be found in the Canarese Catalogue.

In progress.

The main work, called Laghukāvyamālā on the wrapper-index of the monthly parts in which the publication appears, consists of an Anthology, or selection of short poems. To this is appended a separate series of poems, etc., with separate pagination and independent title-pages consecutively numbered. The works in this separate series appear under the following headings:

No.		No.
1.	Govardhana Āchārya.	7.	Bilhaṇa.
2.	Rudraṭa.	8.	Harichandra.
3.	Maṅkhaka.	9.	Mādhava Bhaṭṭa.

5.	Murāri Miṣra.	11.	Abhinanda.
6.	Ṣesha-Kṛishṇa.	12.	Jagannātha Paṇḍitarāja.

Laudatory poems on the publication and extracts have been issued from time to time. These are bound at the end of Pt. 3, 4 and 5.

After Pt. 5 (for 1888*) the issue of an Anthology without title-pages for each work was suspended, and consecutively numbered title-pages appeared for all the works published, including the shorter poems, which are accordingly designated henceforth* 'Laghukāvyāni,' not 'Laghukāvya-mālā.' The works published in the united series, appear under the following headings:

No.		No.
13.	Sāmba.	18.	Amaru.
14.	Ṣesha-Kṛishṇa.	19.	Mayūra.

The book-list gives this as the work of Malla-deva; but the text does not, corresponding with Malladeva's work as described by Aufrecht (Cat. Bodl. 315b). On the other hand, the section on urine (p. 5) does partly correspond with the next Ms. described by Aufrecht and attributed to Śārṅgadhara, an attribution which I have not been able to verify.

The separate titles of these five Śatakas are: Âryâ-śataka, Pâdâravinda-ś, Stuti-ś., Kaṭaksha-ś. and Mandasmita-ś. With the exception of the first, the poems are identical with those included in the Śatakâvali. Nothing seems to be known of this poet except a tradition given in the book-list (Madras, 1881, iii. quarter, p. 53) to the effect that he lived four centuries ago, and was miraculously cured of dumbness, from which last statement it would seem probable that Mûka is rather an epithet than a name.

According to the colophon at the end, it was originally published in śáka 1792 (A.D. 1870). It agrees with the same author's Bengali lecture on the Gāyatrī, published in 1871, down to page 35, corresponding to page 58 of the Bengali text. The greater portion, consequently, has not been incorporated there, and the last six pages of the Bengali text contain an independent treatment of the subject.
